BREAKING NEWS!

There has been a burglary on Maple Street. Late last night at 11pm, Mrs. Jackson was robbed! Her favorite music CDs were stolen! Mrs. Jackson knew it was one of her neighbors because they are the only ones who knew about her collection. Help the police find out who the burglar is.

CLUES:

- Nothing else was stolen in the house. Only the 5 music CDs.
- There were traces of chemicals in the house, including chlorine (which is used in pool water).
- There were no traces of animal hair.
- A birthday card was on the table that said "Happy 30th birthday. From your husband."

Who was the burglar?

Last night, at 11 p.m. Linda Davis was taking a walk through her neighborhood on Maple Street. She had a song stuck in her head, a really good one! She started dancing a bit. She thought about her neighbor, Mrs. Jackson, who had a CD with the song that was stuck in her head. She thought... "Maybe I can borrow the CD for a few days to create a dance to the song."

Before arriving at Mrs. Jackson's house, she stopped at her mailbox and saw she had a letter. It was a birthday card from her husband! How sweet! Then, she snuck into Mrs. Jackson's house. She still had her work clothes on from her job at the lab. She found the CD and a few extras. She thought she would use them for her birthday party and return them later. Mrs. Jackson wouldn't even realize they were gone!

Who was the burglar??

Yesterday, James Williams was out on the slopes, practicing skiing with his wife and son. He was falling quite often and couldn't perfect his technique. James always wanted to be the best. He often had to go skiing with his business partner and he wanted to show his business partner that he was a great skier.

James thought about a book that he remembered his neighbor, Mrs. Brown, talking about. It was a book about skiing that her husband bought. Mr. Brown was a very active man and loved to do sports. James thought that maybe he could borrow the book and no one would notice! Well, when he was walking with his cat outside, he decided to sneak into Mrs. Brown's house. When he looked at the bookshelf, he saw so many different sports books! He decided to take a few and then he would return them later.
